

DIRECT ROUTE THROUGH STATE IS NOW OPEN

Shortest Road North In Good Condition for Travel

FINISH THIS WEEK

Work of Finishing Highway Due Directly to Efforts of Two
Asheville Road
Boosters

There is now an open road from Miami and St. Petersburg through Greenville, S. C., Hendersonville and Asheville, N. C., Knoxville, Maynardville, Tazewell, Cumberland Gap, Tenn., Middlesboro, Pineville, Barbourville, Corbin, Mt. Vernon, Richmond, Lexington, Paris, Cincinnati and Falmouth, Ky., to Cincinnati, O., and the middle west.

Motor travel may now flow back and forth through this short central scenic route between the north and south. Like the other two roads between the north and south, not all this road is a boulevard, but most of it is good, and cars may take the entire distance from south Florida to Cincinnati and beyond under their own power. Continued improvements will be made so that late summer and early fall will see this Dixie "A" by far the best road from north to south.

A little more than six months ago two men with an idea came to Kentucky. Back of the idea they had a belief: a belief in the people and a belief in their idea. This they backed with work and before long they had many communities believing and working. They showed the business possibilities to the people of the state and proved to them the soundness of their idea. Today we see this idea become reality in Kentucky roads bridged, resulting in an open highway Dixie Route "A" from the middle west through Kentucky, Tennessee, and western North Carolina to Florida. This is the achievement to which faith in an idea has taken N. Buckner and Chas. O'Connor of the Asheville Western North Carolina Motor club and Dixie "A" route.

Saves 1200 Miles

This short scenic route just opened will save 1200 miles on the round trip to Florida resorts for the people of Illinois and other points on the Washington-Richmond route. At 20 cents a mile with four to the car this means a net saving of $240.00 per car, and an average of seven days time. The saving to Ohio and Illinois on ten thousand cars only, would be $2,400,000 in good, hard cash and 70,000 days in time traveling. The days saved would mean 2807 months, or 187 years. Surely the people of the middle west have cause to be thankful for this new open road to the south as well as the people all along the Dixie Route "A".

The fundamental basis on which this through highway has been constructed is the one cent a gallon plan on all gasoline sold at all service stations in Kentucky on Dixie Route "A" from Cumberland Gap at the Tennessee-Kentucky line, to the Ohio river.

The plan worked out in Kentucky makes it possible to rail the people who travel the highway to help build it from the middle west to Western North Carolina and Florida resorts.

Gained Outside Help

In addition to the cent a gallon plan, these gentlemen, on invitation, presented the idea of bringing the gaps in the Kentucky highway to big business interests of Cincinnati at a dinner given at the Gibson Hotel, February 7, 1924, when representatives of the Cincinnati Automobile club and Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce pledged $24,000 to this road construction fund with Monte J. Goble of the Fifth Third National bank as general chairman of the joint committee of these two big organizations. Asheville, N. C., invested nearly $30,000 in the enterprise.

Following this these two men presented the same idea in Detroit to representatives of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, resulting in a $10,000 check being forwarded to one of the trustee banks in central Kentucky for use on the two bad gaps in Rock Castle and Laurel counties. Every town and every county from the Tennessee line to the Ohio river has invested in the enterprise, while every possible courtesy and assistance has been rendered by the state highway commission.

VOTE ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Action on Ford Offer In Congress Before Adjourning

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 18.—Indications pointed sharply today toward a vote on the Muscle Shoals issue in the Senate before congress adjourns.

Advocates of the Henry Ford bid have been pressing the senate agricultural committee for a report on the bid, which has passed the house, so that the Senate may vote finally on the offer. Chairman Norris has taken the stand that all of the some half dozen bids for Muscle Shoals should be considered by the committee before any report is made.

STRAIGHT CREEK MINES ARE QUIET

Men Working Every Day With State Troops As Guards—Fields Still Expected

Affairs at the Liberty Coal and Coke company mines have settled into the calm that reigned over the camp before the clash between workers and union sympathizers occurred two weeks ago.

Governor Fields had not arrived at the scene of recent trouble early this afternoon and officials of the mines said they had no direct information concerning the proposed visit. If the chief executive visits the zone of the trouble, it is his opinion that his visit will be unheralded.

The mines are now working every day. New men are being added to the force almost daily. Over 100 state troops are still guarding the workers and the property.

POPULAR PLAY TO BE GIVEN TONIGHT

Senior Class Will Present "Come Out Of The Kitchen" At Auditorium

The Senior class of Middlesboro high school presents "Come Out Of The Kitchen" this evening at 8 o'clock at the school auditorium. The play is a comedy in three acts written by A. E. Miller, the famous playwright. It was produced on Broadway a few winters ago and has since been played in cities all over the country. It has been very popular among high school and college dramatic clubs.

The action of the play is laid in old Virginia. The principal characters are the Dangerfield family, who have been impoverished by the Civil war and Burton Crane, a Yankee millionaire. The Dangerfields lease their old colonial mansion to Crane and they act as servants. Crane falls in love with the oldest daughter and many humorous situations arise.

This is the only play that will be given at the high school this spring and everybody is requested to come. The admission is twenty-five and fifty cents.

Norton Man Buys Pineville Star Plant

John Edwart Pierce, formerly proprietor of the Norton Coalfield Progress, has bought the printing plant of the Pineville Star and is installing a new press. He plans to establish a weekly, the Cumberland Courier, whose first edition will appear next week. Thomas Harp, proprietor of the Pineville Star, will be in charge of the printing department of the new publishing company.

Mr. Pierce, who formerly lived in Pineville, is well-known there and in Middlesboro. His friends wish him success in his latest venture.

To Deliver Parcels On Cumberland Ave.

Delivery service for heavy parcel post packages has been extended so as to include all business houses on Cumberland avenue from the Coal and Iron building to the Cumberland hotel. This will continue as long as the appropriation lasts.

The extension in the service will be appreciated by the business establishments which receive heavy packages daily and have heretofore been carrying them from the postoffice.

WILL INVESTIGATE FACTORY PROJECT

Merchants Encourage Plan—Committee Named to Look Into Matter

Putting the proposition in the hands of a committee of three for investigation, the Middlesboro Merchants' Association at a meeting held at the Middlesboro National Bank last evening, decided to go further with the proposition of J. A. Morris and M. H. Zaubner looking towards the establishment of a raincoat factory in Middlesboro. The meeting was attended by about a score of business men who for an hour and a half discussed the project with the promoters.

The proposed factory will employ about thirty people from the start and will when working at normal capacity employ about fifty. The consensus of opinion among the local people was to investigate carefully and then give the promoters every encouragement to locate here.

As a part of last night's discussion, the matter of a labor survey to be undertaken by a special committee was discussed in an informal manner. This survey would consist of a house to house canvass and would take up every phase of labor in the city and environs—housing conditions, skilled and unskilled labor, male, female and other data that any industrialist would want in making his decision to locate here.

The capital stock of the new raincoat concern would be thirty thousand dollars with twenty thousand paid in and the balance of the stock, ten thousand, to remain in the treasury until issued to stockholders. Mr. Morris stated that twenty thousand dollars would be ample to start the concern, the larger part of this to go into material and the remainder to be for machinery, equipment and working capital.

Otto Brown, W. V. Tennent and F. Moorman were appointed as a committee and will report within a day or so when another meeting will be held.

No More Jaywalking On Down Town Streets

Prospective jay-walkers will hereafter be warned not to cross streets at places other than corners by two white parallel lines. These are now being made by the street department in the business section of town.

Lines which were formerly made for this purpose have long since disappeared. More lines showing places to parking as well as warnings not to park at some places will be made at other points, particularly around the crowded corners.

Little Girl Hit By Car Slightly Injured

Esther Acuff, daughter of J. S. Acuff and Thelma Chadwell, daughter of W. B. Chadwell, each about ten years old, were hit by an auto driven by J. S. Wilson in front of the Broecker-Brummett hospital at noon today. Both were taken into the hospital though examination proved they were only slightly injured.

Mr. Wilson said that he was driving eastward on Cumberland avenue when the children ran from behind a parked car in front of his auto and that he did not have time to stop before the gyver hit. Both were knocked down and received bruises about the arms and head, Thelma's injuries being more serious than those of her companion.

Local Recruiter Leads In District Contest

Sgt. J. D. Miller, local recruiter, has hopes of winning the cash prize of $25 and a three months' furlough offered to the winner in the recruiting contest from April 11 to May 10. He is already five enlistments in the lead.

Clarence W. Warf, who has three honorable discharges for nine years service in the infantry, enlisted yesterday for another three-year hitch in the infantry at Fort Thomas.

Reduce Gas Tax Two Cents

Gasoline prices have been lowered by three stations in the central part of town from twenty-seven to twenty-five cents per gallon, this including the road tax of one cent. There has been no decrease in the wholesale price, the reduction being voluntarily made by the retailers.

SAYS STOLEN LIQUOR WENT TO GILLETTE

New Names Brought Out In Daugherty Probe

MEANS QUOTED

Witness Declares Truth of Story Regarding Disappearance of $50,000 Liquor Few Years Ago

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 18.—H. L. Scaife, former department of justice investigator, today told the Daugherty investigating committee some of the liquor seized several years ago in Washington which disappeared from storage and resulted in a grand jury inquiry went to the "office of Speaker Gillette." He named Gaston B. Means, former department justice agent, his informant and said six department agents could confirm the Scaife statement. The liquor referred to, Scaife said, was seized at the union station here and the entire consignment valued at $50,000 disappeared. The grand jury found no indictments. Senator Wheeler told witnesses he did not want such evidence if it was "one hundred per cent gossip." "You will find it one hundred per cent true," said Scaife.

C. I. DAWSON WAS HERE YESTERDAY

Will Return for Golf Tournament—Reports Louisville Enthusiastic

Charles I. Dawson, former state attorney general and Republican gubernatorial candidate last year says that he expects to attend the Kentucky golf tournament in Middlesboro this year. Golfers of Louisville are enthusiastic over prospects of coming to Middlesboro for the tournament, he says, and indications are that many Louisvillians will be present.

Gen. Dawson who has a law office at Louisville came to Pineville yesterday for a case that is pending in circuit court here. The case not being called for trial he left Pineville yesterday intending to return Monday. He was in Middlesboro yesterday afternoon and left for Louisville last night. While here he was with his old friends, Representative Joe F. Bosworth, Judge J. L. Manning and others.

PLAN TO IMPROVE GOLF CLUB HOME

Officers Discuss Increasing Membership, Talk Over Plans for Tournament

Plans for putting the Middlesboro Country Club building in proper condition for the state tournament were discussed at the meeting of the officers last night. It was decided that electric lights shall be installed in the building and that the work would be done as soon as the Kentucky Utilities company can run a line to the place.

Concentrated efforts will be made to increase the membership of the club. It is thought that between fifteen and twenty more can be obtained before the beginning of the state meet. Tentative plans for the tournament were discussed, all members being enthusiastic over the proposition.

BOMB PASTOR'S HOME

Perpetrators Unknown—Preacher Narrowly Escapes

By Associated Press.

BUFFALO, Apr. 18.—The Rev. L. E. H. Smith, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church and dry crusader, escaped by a few minutes a bomb explosion which wrecked his home here early today. He was about to go home from his church when a telephone message informed him an explosion had wrecked his house. He delayed a few minutes, he said, or he would have been in the dwelling. His family was away. He previously received anonymous letters and had been charged with being a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

BAPTIST REVIVAL RESULTS PLEASING

Seventy Persons Join Church, Many Baptized After Recent Meeting

Rites of baptism were administered to twenty-seven persons at the First Baptist church Wednesday night. The attendance at the service was larger than it had been at any meeting during the revival. The pastor preached on "Why should I be Baptized?" forcefully answering the question.

The results of the revival conducted by Dr. Stephens which closed Sunday night are far-reaching. Not only were seventy persons, many of them heads of families, brought into the church but a more intense interest in Christian work has been created among the members. The church has gained additional strength which will enable it to enlarge its program for the future.

The attendance of the daily morning services of the revival was the largest of any such meetings ever conducted here. The house was packed during the evening services.

Though Dr. Stephens concluded his preaching services Saturday night, the revival continued until Sunday evening. The Rev. Sam P. Martin, pastor, conducting the last two sermons. Interest in the meetings continued until the close of the campaign Sunday night.

All Baptists and others who attended the services agree that Dr. Stephens and E. L. Wolslagle, the latter conducting the singing, constitute a team the like of which is not often found. The prayerful and forceful sermons of the former, simply and beautifully brought out, touched hundreds of hearts and left everlasting effects on many. Mr. Wolslagle's ability as a singer and a musical director made him an ably ally in the services.

The Rev. Martin will join Dr. Stevens and Mr. Wolslagle in a revival campaign at Dr. Stevens' Louisville church in November. The Baptist minister has done a wonderfully constructive work here which is appreciated by the town as well as members of his flock.

City Assessments Almost Completed

William Wallbrecht, city assessor, is now on the last lap of his work of making assessments for this year. He expects to have the work done, with the exception of some transcriptions which may be done in his office, by the first of May.

He is now doing assessment work at the Junction and gradually working toward Middlesboro. Most of the other work in the outlying sections has been finished. There are a number of properties that have not been assessed as a number of changes and trades have been made since the assessments were made last year. Those who have such properties upon which assessments have not been made are requested to the assessor at once.

Jones of Harlan May Run Against Robsion

HARLAN, Ky., Apr. 18.—Political predictions in this section have been given an upset by reports that D. C. Jones, of this city, will enter the race for congress against J. M. Robsion, the incumbent. Mr. Jones refused to either confirm or deny the report, but those in close touch with Mr. Jones say he will be a candidate, and that he will be nominated.

STATE DEMOCRATS TO MEET MAY 14

Will Not Be Changed From Louisville to Lexington Because of Derby

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, April 18.—Charles A. Hardin, chairman of the democratic state central executive committee, today said there would be no reconsideration in connection with the committee's decision yesterday to hold the Democratic state convention here May 14. Efforts were made to hold it in Lexington owing to the convention's proximity to the Kentucky derby, when hotels will be full. Delegates to the convention will be selected at the county mass conventions May 10.

VIRGINIA TO KEEP ON BUILDING ROAD

Strips in Wise and Lee Which Were to Have Been Abandoned Will Be Finished

NORTON, April 18.—As a result of the arguments of the representatives at the hearings by the state highway commission in Richmond last week, Wise and Lee counties "gets in" on the reallocation of 1924 funds.

First and foremost, the re-allocation sets aside $20,000 for grading project No. 131, Norton to Appalachia. The representatives brought back word from Richmond that the prison camps would be moved and work on the Appalachia road abandoned. The re-allocation sets aside $20,000 for this project, and it was the opinion of Mr. Cambliss that the prison camp would be moved and the grading job completed by contract. However, $20,000 won't go very far and but little work may be expected on that road from the 1924 funds.

Second, the ungrated gap between Rose Hill and Jonesville, just a few miles, which breaks connection with Kentucky, is provided for in the re-allocation $50,000 for that purpose.

Third, funds to the amount of $25,000 are set aside for the stretch between St. Paul and Rings church, at present mean, choppy macadam, which will be resurfaced. This is the worst gap on the road to Bristol, and its construction will mean the saving of much time in the trip to Bristol.

But that is not all. A new bridge and approaches, to the extent of $45,000 worth will be put in at Speers Ferry, Clinch river, to replace the present ferry, and $10,000 are appropriated to grade a stretch from Natural Tunnel toward Clinchport.

A Thought

It is too late to be on our guard when we are in the midst of evil.—Seneca.

THE ALIEN INSANE

The immigration problem is at present demanding attention of Congress and the country at large. In connection therewith it is advisable to some figures that have been published recently concerning the high rate of insanity among aliens now in this country.

According to a statistical report issued in March by the State Hospital Commission, of New York, more than 10,000 aliens were included in the 41,392 patients on the books of the New York State civil hospitals during the past year. To this number there should be added 7,370 naturalized citizens among the patients, bringing the total of foreign-born patients during 1923 up to 43.1 per cent of the entire hospital population of the year.

The expenditure in this state alone necessary to care for the alien insane, the report indicates, was more than $3,000,000. This is some indication of the seriousness of the problem.

IT IS CHARACTER THAT COUNTS

In his address delivered Tuesday evening, by Secretary of State Hughes, accepted by some as a "key-note" for the campaign, he said this among other things, as reported in the dispatches printed: "No one can foresee the exigency which an administration may have to confront. It is the unexpected that happens to Presidents as to others. For this reason, character is more important than declarations. Today there is no occasion for experiments, no reason for uncertainty. The best assurance of the future is the character of Calvin Coolidge."

That is the truth well and plainly told. It could be done no more clearly or with greater emphasis, were a hundred times more words or sentences employed in stating it. Men, and parties as well, are judged by what they do rather than say; deeds speak louder than words.

George Washington was not elected on account of the platform, the written platform of a political party; his record as the commander-in-chief and the choice made of him to preside over the convention that drafted and signed the constitution, that is what made him the President of the infant republic.

When Abraham Lincoln was nominated in the year 1860, the convention that nominated him adopted a platform. But in the memorable campaign of that year, how much was said about the platform adopted by the convention? The campaign orators of the year, many of them, most of them, indulged in coarse abuse of Lincoln, the man.

It has not often been the case that a candidate for President has been nominated by any party solely upon any vital principle; it has been the case, in some instances, for the reason of popularity with the politicians whose rule of action was to have those named presumed to be successful vote-getters.

Calvin Coolidge is an off-spring from the humber walks of life. He was born on a farm, is the son of a farmer who is not a man of wealth. The President is not ignorant of a farmer's work; he has done that sort of work with his own hands. But he had a passion for learning and gratified it free from the attractions of city boys and young men.
He found himself yearning for a college education. He went to Amherst, exercised the virtues of industry and rigid economy, and was given a well-earned and an ardently pursued degree. He has not been regarded as a professional office-seeker. But he has held a number of offices, one of which was governor of his state of Massachusetts. Then Vice President, now President, he is making for himself a record, has made one of which he nor his country need feel ashamed.

His party will nominate him for election, to be voted for next November. If he were asked to write a platform and should do it, it would be a brief one, as brief as that on which John Bell of Tennessee, was nominated for President in 1860—"The union, the constitution and the enforcement of the laws."

As a candidate for President, Calvin Coolidge needs no formal platform; he, his life, his record, his character, that is all the platform he needs or that his supporters desire. His work, speak with greater emphasis, more convincingly, than the words of the most eloquent orator on the continent.

No stronger, sterner, surer platform can be constructed upon which to stand as a candidate for President, than character. He has that, and built it himself.—The Journal and Tribune.

DON'T FOOL YOUR BANKER

A man may fool his lawyer, his doctor, his pastor and even his wife and get away with it but don't try and fool your banker. We are apt to look at the banker as a cold-blooded proposition who sets behind a mahogany desk and refuses to renew our ninety day obligation.

As a matter of fact to refuse the renewal of the note is quite often not a matter of business with the banker but a check on the impetuosity of the client wishing the loan or renewal. Your bank president or cashier is a check and balance on the business life of the community—the governor on the commercial engine that keeps the fly wheel from racing. The credit man of a juggling house is always eager for accounts, and ready to stretch a point as long as it is sound business—an extension that works for the good of the client and the house. So it is with the man who passes on the bank loan. He is always ready to extend credit as far as it is sound business if it will work for the business success of his customer. The old days of note-shaving have long passed and only by the general prosperity of clients, in a collective sense, may the bank itself go forward on the higher road to success.

Therefore don't fool your banker. His confidence in your business acumen and hard-headed sense may mean health, prosperity and even life for your family and your self. Watch your loans—play fair—tell him the truth and you'll find the gentleman behind the mahogany desk a mighty human sort of fellow after all, business like, albeit, but very, very human.

The most expensive gift on earth is the gift of gab.

Leading a noble life on a single salary is very difficult.

Lots of people ought to be glad they are anywhere.

The most weather beaten man in this town is the weather man.

Life is too short to stop to argue with men who can lick you.

Lots of birds think they are wise as owls because they are always hooting at something.

There are so many things wrong with the world you haven't much time to worry over any certain one.

SHEAR &amp; FASHION

There's a constant clipp-clipping and the girls all know it well. There's no telling when this fashion's going to stop. For the fun ones go a tripping, sometimes slow and oft pell-mell; go a tripping to the corner barber shop. Sharpened shears are very busy; fine-toothed combs are on the job. Curly and hanging tresses are no more. Mister Barber Man is dizzy as he cuts a ditty bob and sends wafts of fuzzy-head hair to the floor.
"Yes, sir, Mister," says young sister, as she crawls into the chair. "I would like to have my hair cut very short." And then Mister wears a bluster as he trims the locks with care, shingle bob or sheik or any other sort.
Grandma, too, has got the habit and her youth's returned somehow. Why, the rage has got the parlor fairly vexed. Where it used to be the men folk's, it's now wave and mothers may who will answer when the barber man says, "Next!"

Lots of Patches--But White House Receives Still More

B. CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, April 18.—The White House is pretty rickety, it has been generally admitted in Washington for some time.

It looks all right. Cracks in the walls and crumbling places in the columns are kept neatly plastered up and painted over. Sagging floors have been braced. Weak spots in the ceilings have been strengthened. The roof has been patched and foundations have been tinkered with.

To the eye there's nothing the matter with the old place.

There isn't even any likelihood that it will tumble down unexpectedly and bury the president in the ruins.
But underneath it all the White House is dilapidated.
What's more, eye is say it's past the point where it pays to go on repairing it. That is, it needs such constant repairs that every few years they amount to as much as a new building would cost.

On the strength of representations to this effect, the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives, recently sent for a report of Clarence Sherrill, who has charge of public buildings and grounds in the treasuring of the entire structure capital, and asked him what a new which is and to be urgently necessary.

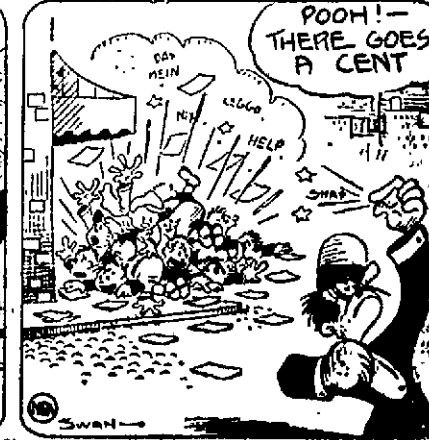

Read Mt. 27:20-50. Text: 27:35. And . . . they . . . crucified him.
"In the midst of his physical pain and mental distress Jesus seemed to be chiefly thoughtful of others; the soldiers that nailed him to the cross; the mother that he had so long supported; the awakening heart of the bigand on the neighboring cross; his mission to men. This could only be because the habit of his life was to take account of others."

Meditation: Jesus had faced the cross for many days and no doubt had gone to God frequently to learn the Father's will for him. There were other times in his life when he stepped aside when men sought to kill him. He could have saved himself here, but he realized that only by submitting himself could he be true to his life's ideal and the will of God.

Personal Question: Does the cross of Christ mean more and more to me?
Prayer: Most merciful Father, we pray that we may not be slackers in the world's travail but faithful companions of our Lord. Give us grace neither to deny nor forsake thee. If we weaken, may we not fail. Even should we fail, lift us up and turn us, O God, towards duty, that in laboring here we may find life. Amen.

Prayer: Most merciful Father, we pray that we may not be slackers in the world's travail but faithful companions of our Lord. Give us grace neither to deny nor forsake thee. If we weaken, may we not fail. Even should we fail, lift us up and turn us, O God, towards duty, that in laboring here we may find life. Amen.

White House would er the country Luck.

About a billion," said the colonel.

Well, the committee had just been cutting the stuffing out of the "independent office appropriations bill," in line with the rule for general governmental economy, so the committee members didn't see their way clear to the addition of a $1,000,000 item for a new executive mansion. And there's no prospect that any such item will be tacked on any time in the near future.

But just to show that this isn't necessarily the best kind of economy.

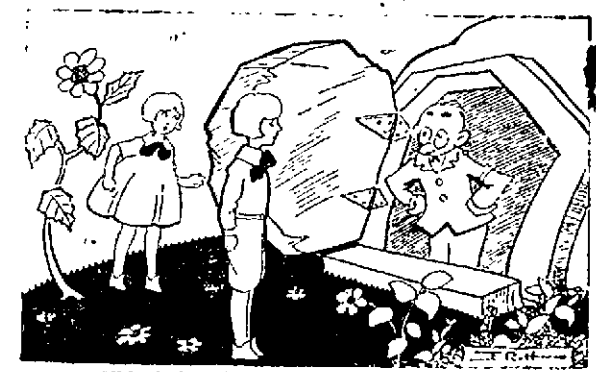

Plans for another White House job of repair work are to be submitted to the House of Representatives, recently sent for a report of Clarence Sherrill, who has charge of public buildings and grounds in the treasuring of the entire structure capital, and asked him what a new which is and to be urgently necessary.

"Who is knocking at my front door?" he cried

Nick was trying to lift a big stone out of the way, and finding it too heavy, picked up a little stone and tried to break it. Bang! Bang! Bang! he hammered three times.

Suddenly the big stone swung back like a door and a funny little man appeared. "Who is knocking on my front door?" he cried.

"It was me!" cried Nick, "but honestly I didn't know it was anybody's door. It just looked like a stone to me."

"Humph! That's what it is to have mortal eyes," shouted the little man. "If you had broken it, it would have taken a thousand fairies a thousand years to make another one just like it. Who are you?"

"We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins," said Nick. "And we are ever so sorry we bothered you."

"That's all right. Your apology is accepted," said the little man, smiling suddenly. "I'm not as cross as I look. I like children. My name is Muggs—Mister Muggs! And I have a magic automobile! And I'm just starting out for a ride. And I like company! And I have just room for two more if you squeeze. Would you like to come?"

"You're right, we would," shouted Nick.

"Yes, thank you sir," said nice little Nancy more politely.

"All right, then," declared Mister Muggs, jumping out of his doorway into the garden and whistling through his fingers.

Instantly a nice little automobile came rolling out of the rosebushes although the Twins had been there only a minute before and hadn't seen a sign of it and stopped beside them. And then, without anybody touching it, it opened its doors hospitably for them to enter.

"Where are we going?" asked Nancy.

"Oh, yes! I forgot to mention it," said Mister Muggs. "We are going to Once-Upon-a-Time Land."

"Once-Upon-a-Time Land!" exclaimed Nick. "What a funny name!"

"Well, the only other name it could be called would be 'And-They-Lived-Happily-Ever-After Land.'"

"We don't know what you are talking about, honestly," Mister Muggs, laughed Nancy. "It sounds ever so mysterious."

"Well, I can soon tell you what I mean," he answered. "I'm sort of a private detective for the Fairy Queen. When she wants to find out anything in one of her nine hundred and ninety-nine kingdoms, she sends me. My ears are extra sharp even for a fairy, and my eyes are extra bright, and my nose is a wonder."

"But what has that got to do with the funny place you are going to?"

"Everything! Because it's my business to find out about all the people in the stories that are supposed to live happily ever after. If anything is the matter it's my place to fix it up. I'm on my way to see Cinderella and her prince now. They live in a castle in Once-Upon-a-Time Land and I want to be perfectly sure that they are happy. Come along. Hop in."

The Twins didn't need a second invitation after that. In they jumped and they all rode away.

THE ALIEN INSANE

The immigration problem is at present demanding attention of Congress and the country at large. In connection therewith it is advisable to some figures that have been published recently concerning the high rate of insanity among aliens now in this country.

According to a statistical report issued in March by the State Hospital Commission of New York, more than 10,000 aliens were included in the 41,302 patients on the books of the New York State civil hospitals during the past year. To this number there should be added 7,370 naturalized citizens among the patients, bringing the total of foreign-born patients during 1923 up to 43.1 percent of the entire hospital population of the year.

The expenditure in this state alone necessary to care for the alien insane, the report indicates, was more than $3,000,000. This is some indication of the seriousness of the problem.

IT IS CHARACTER THAT COUNTS

In his address delivered Tuesday evening, by Secretary of State Hughes, accepted by some as a "key-note" for the campaign, he said this among other things, as reported in the dispatches printed: "No one can foresee the exigency which an administration may have to confront. It is the unexpected that happens to Presidents as to others. For this reason, character is more important than declarations. Today there is no occasion for experiments, no reason for uncertainty. The best assurance of the future is the character of Calvin Coolidge."

That is the truth well and plainly told. It could be done no more clearly or with greater emphasis, were a hundred times more words or sentences employed in stating it. Men, and parties as well, are judged by what they do rather than say deeds speaks louder than words.

George Washington was not elected on account of the platform, the written platform of a political party; his record as the commander-in-chief and the choice made of him to preside over the convention that drafted and signed the constitution, that is what made him the President of the infant republic.

When Abraham Lincoln was nominated in the year 1860, the convention that nominated him adopted a platform. But in the memorable campaign of that year, how much was said about the platform adopted by the convention? The campaign orators of the year, many of them, most of them, indulged in coarse abuse of Lincoln, the man.

It has not often been the case that a candidate for President has been nominated by any party solely upon any vital principle; it has been the case, in some instances, for the reason of popularity with the politicians, whose rule of action was to have those named presumed to be successful vote-getters.

Calvin Coolidge is an offspring from the humbler walks of life. He was born on a farm, is the son of a farmer who is not a man of wealth. The President is not ignorant of a farmer's work; he has done that sort of work with his own hands. But he had a passion for learning and gratified it free from the attractions of city boys and young men.

He found himself yearning for a college education. He went to Amherst, exercised the virtues of industry and right economy, and was given a well-earned and an ardently pursued degree. He has not been regarded as a professional office-seeker. But he has held a number of offices, one of which was governor of his state of Massachusetts. Then Vice President, now President, he is making for himself a record, has made one of which he nor his country need feel ashamed.

His party will nominate him for reelection, to be voted for next November. If he were asked to write a platform and should do it, it would be a brief one, as brief as that on which John Bell of Tennessee, was nominated for President in 1860—"The union, the constitution and the enforcement of the laws."

As a candidate for President, Calvin Coolidge needs no formal platform; he, his life, his record, his character, that is all the platform he needs or that his supporters desire. His work, speak with greater emphasis, more convincingly, than the words of the most eloquent orator on the continent.

No stronger, after, surer platform can be constructed upon which to stand as a candidate for President, than character. He has that, and built it himself.—The Journal and Tribune.

DON'T FOOL YOUR BANKER

A man may fool his lawyer, his doctor, his pastor and even his wife and get away with it but don't try and fool your banker. We are apt to look at the banker as a cold-blooded proposition who sets behind a mahogany desk and refuses to renew on ninety day obligation.

As a matter of fact to refuse the renewal of the note is quite often not a matter of business with the banker but a check on the impetuosity of the client wishing the loan or renewal. Your bank president or cashier is a check and balance on the business life of the community—the governor on the commercial engine that keeps the fly wheel from racing. The credit man of a jobbing house is always eager for accounts, and ready to stretch a point as long as it is sound business—an extension of that works for the good of the client and the house. So it is with the man who passes on the bank loan. He is always ready to extend credit as far as it is sound business if it will work for the business success of his customer. The old days of note-shaving have long passed and only by the general prosperity of clients in a collective sense, may the bank itself go forward on the higher road to success.

Therefore don't fool your banker. His confidence in your business acumen and hard-headed sense may mean health, prosperity and even life for you and your family. Watch your loans—play fair—tell him the truth and you'll find the gentleman behind the mahogany desk a mighty human sort of fellow after all, business like, albeit, but very, very human.

The most expensive gift on earth is the gift of gab.

Leading a double life on a single salary is very difficult.

Lots of people ought to be glad they are anywhere.

The most weather beaten man in this town is the weather man.

Life is too short to stop to argue with men who can lick you.

Lots of birds think they are wise as owls because they are always hooting at something.

There are so many things wrong with the world you haven't much time to worry over any certain one.

There's a constant clipp-clipping and the girls all know it well. There's nothing when this fashion's going to stop. For the fair ones go a tripping, sometimes slow and oft pell-mell; go a tripping to the corner barber-shop. Sharp-shaved shears are very busy; fine-toothed combs are on the job. Curly and hanging tresses are no more. Mister Barber Man is busy as he cuts a fifty bob and sends wafts of fuzzy-head hair to the floor.

"Yes, sir, Mister," says young sister, as she crawls into the chair. "I would like to have my hair cut very short." And then Mister wears a bluster as he turns the locks with care, shingle bob or sheik or any other sort.

Grandma, too, has got the habit and her youth's returned somehow. Why, the rage has got the barber fairly vexed. Where it used to be the men talk, it's their wives and mothers now who will answer when the barber man says, "Next."

Lots of Patches--But White House Receives Still More

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The White House is pretty rickety, it has been generally admitted in Washington for some time.

It looks all right. Cracks in the walls and crumbling places in the columns are kept neatly plastered up and painted over. Sagging floors have been braced. Weak spots in the ceilings have been strengthened. The roof has been patched and foundations have been tinkered with.

To the eye there's nothing the mat-

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

FRIDAY
The Crucifixion

Read Mt. 27:29-50. Text: 27:35.

And . . . they crucified him. "In the midst of his physical pain and mental distress Jesus seemed to be chiefly thoughtful of others; the soldiers that nailed him to the cross; the mother that he had so long supported; the awakening heart of the bigard on the neighboring cross; his mission to men. This could only be because the habit of his life was to take account of others."

Meditation: Jesus had faced the cross for many days and no doubt had gone to God frequently to learn the Father's will for him. There were other times in his life when he stepped aside when men sought to kill him. He could have saved himself here, but he realized that only by submitting himself could he be true to his life's ideals and the will of God.

Personal Question: Does the cross of Christ mean more and more to me?

Prayer: Most merciful Father, we pray that we may not be slackers in the world's travail but faithful companions of our Lord. Give us grace neither to deny nor forsake thee. If we weaken, may we not fall. Even should we fail, lift us up and turn us, O God, towards duty, that in laboring here we may find life. Amen.

ter with the old one.

There isn't even any likelihood that it will tumble down unexpectedly and bury the president in the ruins.

But underneath it all the White House is dilapidated.

What's more, experts say it's past the point where it pays to go on repairing it. That is, it needs such constant repairs that every few years they amount to as much as a new building would cost.

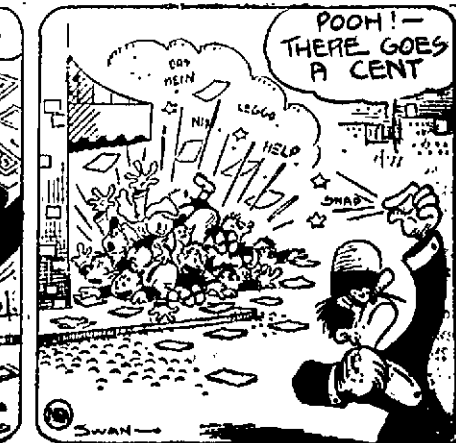

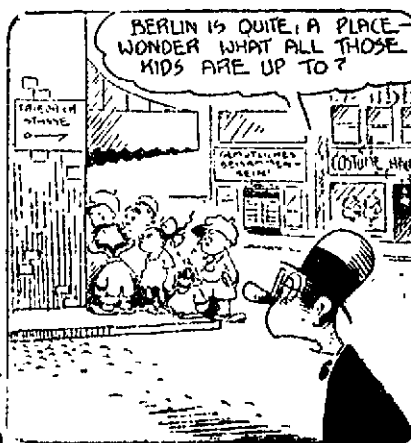

On the strength of representations to this effect, the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives recently sent for Gen. Col. President Coolidge shortly involving a change of sheriff, who has charge of $100,000 expenditure. They call for public buildings and grounds in the reproofing of the entire structure capital, and asked him what a new which is said to be urgently necessary.

White House would of the country back.

About a million," said the colonel.

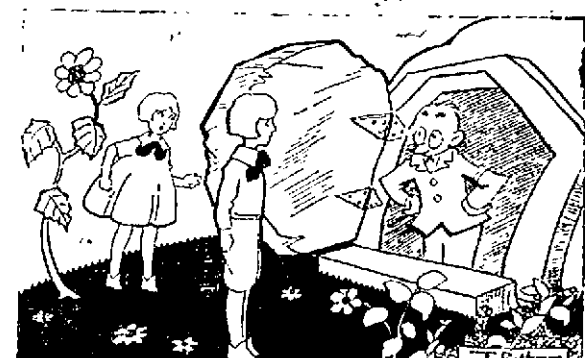

Well, the committee had just been cutting the stuffing out of the "Independent office appropriations bill," in line with the rule for general governmental economy, so the committee members didn't see their way clear to the addition of a $100,000 item for a new executive mansion. And there's no prospect that any such item will be tacked on any time in the near future.

But just to show that this isn't necessarily the best kind of economy.

Plans for another White House job of repair work are to be submitted to the House of Representatives shortly involving a change of sheriff, who has charge of $100,000 expenditure. They call for public buildings and grounds in the reproofing of the entire structure capital, and asked him what a new which is said to be urgently necessary.

struction work receive all funds from the gasoline dealers on the cent a gallon plan, and from popular subscription investments from outside sources.

These trustee banks pay out the funds only on certified pay rolls for labor by the foreman and executive committee, and certified invoices for material.

In this manner the work has been done on a net cost basis, with the surprising result of making each dollar do the ordinary work of two, three or four.

F. O. Clark, dean of the vocational department of Berea college, Berea, Ky., and L. S. Walker, president of the Berea Kiwanis club, supervised the work in Laurel and Rock Castle counties and J. A. McElmott, president of the First State bank, Harboursville, Ky., and Wade H. Chandler, of Chandler garage, Corbin, performed similar services for the fourteen-mile stretch of road in Knox county. All engineering and plans for construction work, business management and publicity has been under the general direction of Messrs. Buckner and McElmott.

The inspection of this cooperative work being done in Rock Castle county by prominent business men of Cincinnati, O., Lexington and other towns in Kentucky resulted in statements from road engineers and road maintenance men in the party that this cooperative work was being done on the basis of one half to one fourth the cost of similar work by state and county authorities in Kentucky and Ohio.

The farmers along the line are co-operating in this work and are delighted that a road is being built through their community and a wonderful spirit has been developed.

The men give one day free at each pay day which comes every two weeks and it is a notable fact that more stone was hauled on the road and more work done on these free days than other days. When asked by one of the party how many loads were hauled with a team in a day, a farmer replied with a smile and an evident feeling of pride: "We are putting from thirty to thirty-two loads on the road in a day and one of the boys hauled thirty-three loads in one day." This is the kind of spirit that actuates the farmers and men in Kentucky in building the gaps in the through road in Kentucky that is wiping out the odious phrase "desert state" by which the motorists of the middle west have long known Kentucky.

Health is Wealth

Health is one of the greatest things your family can possess. It brings happiness and success. But health must be safeguarded by good wholesome foods that are prepared from the purest ingredients. This is especially true of bakings. If they are not properly raised, we all know that they are not easily digested. Many times when self-rising flour is used in place of good plain flour and dependable baking powder—the results are flat, soggy and heavy foods.

Don't take chances! Use a reliable brand of baking powder and plain flour. Then you will be sure of healthful bakings that are easily digested.

Remember, science has never found anything to take the place of the tried and tested method of using plain flour and good baking powder in preparing bakings. Millions of housewives now know by actual experience that many preparations that are claimed to take their place are worthless and dangerous to health because they fail to leaven. There is no comparison.

Calumet, the Economy Baking Powder, is known to be one sure and positive aid to successful bakings that are always pure, sweet and wholesome.

That's the reason its sales are 2½ times as much as any other brand.
